10. Clause C16.61-1 is hereby revised and shown in full text below:

C16.61-1 LUBRICATING OIL, INTERNAL COMBUSTION ENGINE (MS9250) (A QUALIFIED PRODUCT) (DESC NOV 1999)

- (a) Qualified product shall conform to MIL-L-9000H (SH) dated September 16, 1987, with the following exception: Magnesium content shall be 100 ppm maximum.
- (b) The lubricating oil shall be only those products authorized by the qualification activity for listing on the latest qualified products list (QPL-9000) prior to contract award.
- (c) Qualified products listed on the latest QPL-9000 that no longer meet the qualified formulation due to a change in base stocks will be considered, provided the offeror submits the following additional information with its offer:
- (1) Typical base stocks characteristics for API gravity, viscosity (cSt) @ 100° C, viscosity index, flash point ($^{\circ}$ C), cloud point ($^{\circ}$ C), pour point ($^{\circ}$ C), neutralization number, color, sulfur (percent m/m), aniline point ($^{\circ}$ C), saturates (percent volume), aromatics (percent volume), and naphthenics (percent volume). The offeror shall also specify the test method used to determine each base stock characteristic. This information will be used to determine how the change in base stocks will affect the finished product and/or formulation.
- (2) In addition, Alcor IG test result information shall be provided for all finished blends that differ in base stocks approved by the qualification activity. This test information will be compared to the Caterpillar IG-2 test required by the specification (MIL-L-9000). The address and telephone number where the Alcor IG test is performed is-
